'Rifled Safe' Quip Questionable

According to an article printed in the Omaha World-Herald's Saturday morning edition, UNO administrative officials said "somebody may have rifled the safe of Athletic Director Clyde Biggers" to get information concerning a proposed donation.

A story about the proposal, which was to be made to Omaha businessman D.J. Witherspoon, ran in Friday's Gateway.

Following the printing of the World-Herald's story, UNO's Executive Assistant to the Chancellor, Charles Hein, termed some of the World-Herald article "unfortunate" and said that his comment concerning the alleged "safe rifling" was an "off the cuff remark", which was "made in jest".

However, Larry Parrott, the World-Herald reporter who wrote the story, told the Gateway that Hein "knew he was speaking on the record."

Parrott said he asked Hein if he knew how the Gateway had gotten the story. Hein reportedly replied he didn't know for sure, but had his suspicions that "a document may have been taken from a safe in Biggers' office".

Further investigation reveals that there is no safe in Biggers' office. However, according to the athletic director, there is a safe elsewhere in the Fieldhouse. As of Sunday evening, Biggers had not checked the safe for any signs of illegal entry because "it is difficult to get into as it is in a vault". Biggers feels the entire incident is "much ado about nothing".

He revealed that the proposal was never submitted to Witherspoon, but did note that football coach Al Caniglia and he visited Witherspoon last summer. At that time they talked about facilities improvement, promotion, and a grant-in-aid program for the Maverick football squad.

According to Biggers, Witherspoon indicated an interest in the Athletic Department's Maverick Club. Biggers said he told Witherspoon, "We'd be happy to have you in the corral any way you want to be".

Biggers said he has approached 15 to 20 people of Witherspoon's "caliber" in the same manner.

NU Inspects Own Food

The Student Center cafeteria at UNO does not undergo the same sanitary inspections as other eating places in Douglas County.

The Omaha-Douglas County Health Department has the responsibility for the inspection of all eating establishments and retail food stores in the county. However, the cafeterias at UNO and the Medical Center are being inspected by the University of Nebraska's own Division of Environmental Health and Safety Office in Lincoln.

Future change

But Justin Dierks, chief of the Food and Drink Program of the Douglas County Health Department, said this situation is going to change in the future.

Dierks said that his office formerly inspected the cafeterias at the Omaha university about five years ago, but that after the merger the University of Nebraska asked to do its own inspections.

"Unfortunately we agreed at the time," he said, "but now we realize it was a mistake to discontinue our inspections."

Dierks emphasized that he is not insinuating that anything is wrong with the food service operations at UNO, but that "it is always better to have an outsider look at things objectively".

Cafeteria Sanitary

Del Weed, the head of the Division of Environmental Health and Safety Office and the person who last inspected the UNO facilities last March, said the cafeteria is sanitary.

"We don't have a rating system like a lot of inspecting agencies," he said, "but we like to think our facilities are in I-A condition."

The Douglas County Health Department has a check list of 118 items for its inspections and rates eating establishments on a scale of excellent, excellent-good, good, good-fair and failing.

Weed said the University's lack of a rating system poses no real problem.

"We're professional people and we like to think we're working with professional people," he said. "We understand their problems and they understand ours, so things work out quite well."

UNO, Creighton Study Revenue

A two-part Symposium on General Revenue Sharing will be held this weekend and next at UNO and Creighton University.

The first part of the symposium will be held this Friday and Saturday at UNO's Eppley Conference Center Auditorium. At 7:30 p.m. Friday, Murray L. Weidenbaum, former secretary of the treasury for economic policy in the Nixon administration and a fiscal economist for the U.S. Bureau of the Budget, will speak on "The New Federalism: Revenue Sharing Philosophy and Theory".

Saturday the featured speakers will be John Shannon, assistant director of the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations; and Linda Brown, administrator of the League of Women Voters' Revenue Sharing Monitoring Project.

Several local finance and economic leaders will also be featured in speeches, panel discussions and group workshops.

The symposium, which is free to the public, will then continue next weekend at the Rigge Hall of Science at Creighton University.

Ak-Sar-Ben Scholarship Winners Honored Along With Benefactors

Sixty-four recipients of Ak-Sar-Ben scholarships were honored at a luncheon last Friday in the Student Center.

President of Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society Nick T. Newberry, speaking for Ak-Sar-Ben, said the event was one of the most pleasant Ak-Sar-Ben functions of the year.

He said the group's "association with UNO is a very special one".

Sophomore psychology major Kathy Johnson, speaking on behalf of the scholarship recipients, thanked Ak-Sar-Ben for "the stepping stone to further education".

UNO Chancellor Ronald Roskens saluted the men of Ak-Sar-Ben on behalf of the University, for their contributions to education.

"Because of the opportunity to continue their formal education," he said, "all students will recognize the pitfalls of ignorance."

The scholarships pay each student $250 per year, a total of $16,000 for the 64 recipients. They are granted to public and parochial high school graduates in the Omaha area upon the recommendation of their principals.

In attendance at the luncheon were many of the Ak-Sar-Ben Governors and Councilors. Also present were the king and queen of Ak-Sar-Ben, Samuel Greenberg and Susan Hawkins.

Dickinson Proposal Would Abolish Fee

by Dick Ulmer

LB 362 is a proposal which will be acted upon when the Nebraska Legislature meets in January. It seeks to end the collection of mandatory student fees by state universities. The following is the first in a series of articles on the bill. Subsequent articles will reveal other points of view.

State Senator James Dickinson says, "The electorate is up in arms about the use of student fees." He aims to do something about them.

If passed by the upcoming session of the Unicameral, Dickinson's Legislative Bill 362 will abolish the collection of student fees by any university in Nebraska which gets money from the State government.

What does Dickinson have against the fees? His basic objection is to the budgeting of them. He said, "If this money was in the regular budget it would have to be justified." He continued, "All university money should go through the regular channels."

Dickinson feels that the money given to the student governments at UNO and UNL has been misused. He stated, "People are frustrated by some of the things that are going on... they are appalled at the liberalism of the youth on our campuses."

Who Distorts?

Two months ago, Chancellor Ronald Roskens accused the Gateway of "distortions" in the reporting of the China Affair, and called the coverage irresponsible.

Roskens' concern for integrity in the dissemination of information, however, is hardly exemplified by his administrative assistant, Charles Hein.

Hein, who also doubles as an assistant professor of journalism, was totally irresponsible in his comments about the Witherspoon stadium proposal to World-Herald reporter Larry Parrott.

According to Parrott, Hein said somebody may have rifled the safe of Athletic Director Clyde Biggers. Roskens' assistant did not make the statement in jest, said the reporter, as Hein later claimed.

Athletic Director Biggers admits he hadn't even bothered to check the safe for a break-in, an action which would reasonably precede such an allegation.

Roskens had more to say about the china and silver story back in September. The administrator charged that the article opened up an "impression that there have been some underhanded activities."

The accusation of creating false impressions should rightfully be leveled on Hein who sought to discredit the Gateway.

The administrative aide also insinuated that the student newspaper is only allowed to print information with the "knowledge, authorization, or consent of the University." Hein said the story did not fulfill this requirement.

If such consent were needed, the Regents would never have approved their Guidelines for the Student Press which expressly state the publications should be free of "censorship and advance approval of copy" and its editors "free to develop their own editorial policies and news coverage."

In his statement, Hein apologized for any embarrassment caused by the publication of the proposal. The Gateway wholeheartedly apologizes for any embarrassment caused by rash administrative statements.

The handling of the Witherspoon donation story by the local press was studied last weekend by the Gateway.

Some of the commendable coverage came out Saturday when the World-Herald emphasized Charles Hein's questionable comment concerning the safe rifling. It's good to know such sensationalism is acceptable.

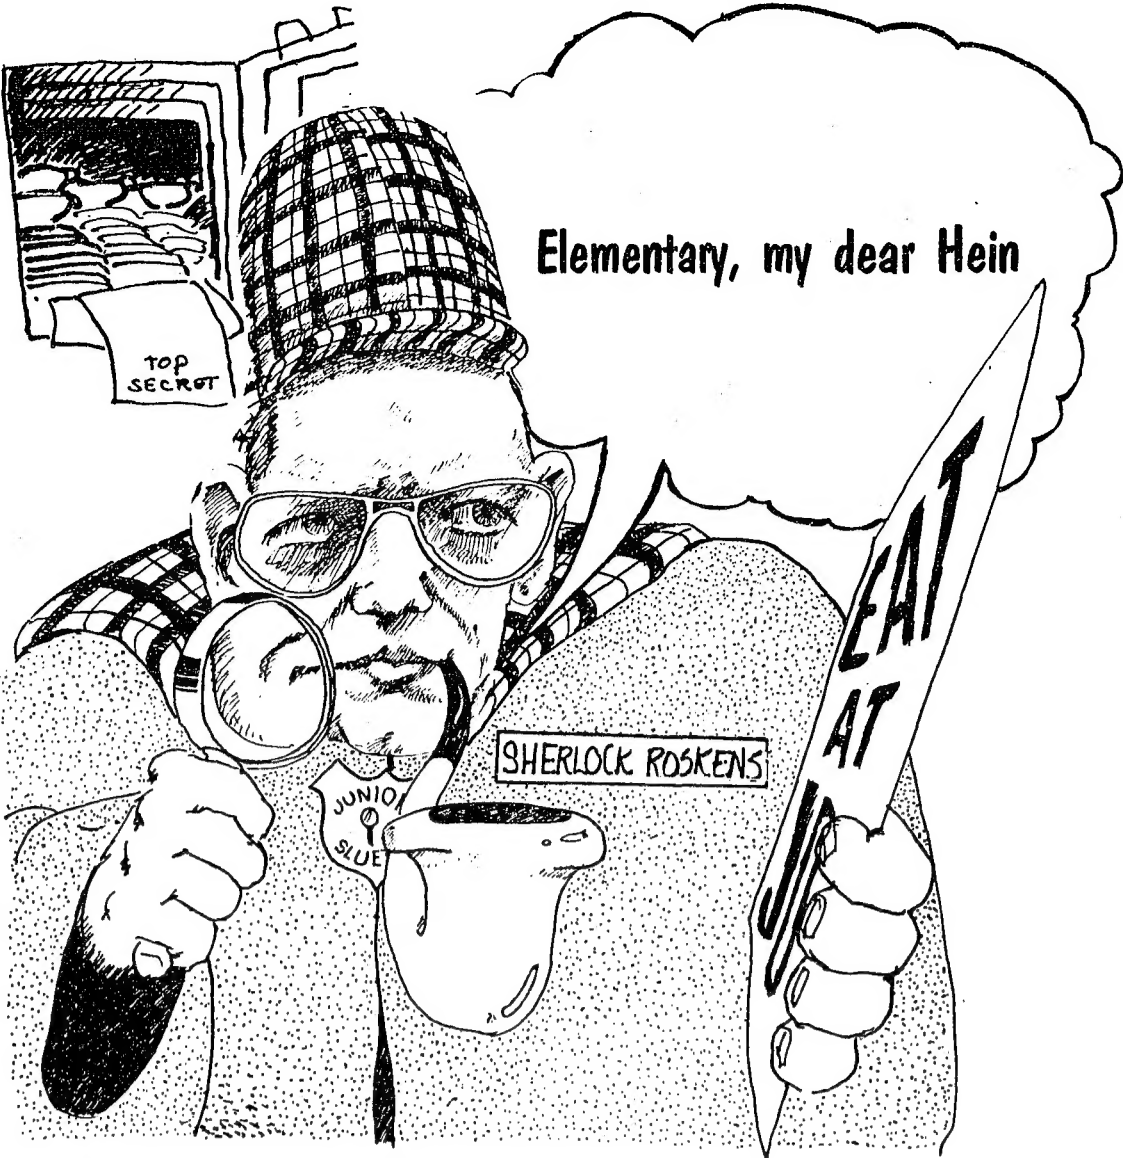

The story's first paragraph and the headline stressed the fact that the student newspaper had an undisclosed source. Undisclosed sources must be hot news these days.

Unfortunately, the Omaha daily contacted the other source involved in the story — the UNO student newspaper. They were outreported, however, by two television stations who had the presence of mind not to hear the other side.

The stations hurriedly included Hein's hand-delivered statement in their evening news without any background to the story. This helped the Gateway staff realize something else it didn't know: never question the completeness of a quickly-constructed UNO press release.

Fairness was truly demonstrated by one of the stations that did a follow-up story the next night. The TV reporter interviewed the UNO Chancellor. In the interview, he apologized for the student newspaper . . . an independent publication that one would think could speak for itself.

After examining local reportage of this recent news item, the Gateway congratulates the local media on the good example they set for aspiring journalists.

LETTERS

Dear Editor,

This letter is aimed more at the reading public than it is at the staff itself.

For those souls who look anxiously to the bi-weekly delivery of the Gateway — my hat's off to you. You students that read it occasionally will soon find out that if you want to find out what goes on on campus — you should read it cover to cover.

Since our campus is one of a constantly moving populace, it's the only thing that's able to tie together all the loose ends of this campus. So — please don't complain that you don't know what's "happening". If you could just take time to READ.

If you do read it — you may make some startling discoveries. Like the quality of the writers (compare! compare!), the satire (yes Virginia, the Gateway has that, too!), interesting movie/play revues which you can read so you don't get rooked out of money by going to a worthless flick.

You also get to hear all the excitement — "The Flasher" — the China incident — our football team.

Do you realize if it weren't for the Gateway — you'd never ever find out what goes on on the Mod sod? If we waited for other publications to write about us — we'd never get into print. Our sports-writers have managed to put some pressure on one publication — we are getting more coverage because of that. Remember, the paper's on your side.

For those of you who think the Gateway is only good to wrap your garbage in — sorry — you're on the wrong track. And for those who think it's a snap to put it together — like to see you try it.

Do you realize how many hours it takes to search out stories, write them, edit, then work on layouts and then make them fit? It's really quite a job. If this sounds a bit foreign to some of you, I suggest you be careful from now on before you disclaim the paper. You may not know what you're talking about.

Our "sister" campus, UNL, refers to the Daily Nebraskan, their paper, as the "Rag". Guess its content leaves much to be desired. They call theirs "The Rag"; we're proud to call ours THE GATEWAY.

Respectfully yours,
Barbara J. Wasko

New Testing Hours

The Counseling and Testing Center will no longer remain open evenings from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m., according to the center's director, Dr. Gale Oleson.

These hours were adopted on Sept. 4, Oleson said, for the convenience of persons who could not come in during the day-time hours. A recent study, however, indicates traffic to the center is so light during these times, he said, that it is advisable to discontinue the practice.

Oleson advises that appointments are available to anyone who finds it absolutely necessary to come in during the 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. hours. Appointments can be made by calling 554-2409.

Picture Proofs

All senior picture proofs must be returned to the year-book office, Student Center 312A, by today if they are to appear in this year's book.

Anyone wishing to order pictures for personal use must also return the proofs today along with a check for the order.

Finance Fraternity

Phi Iota Nu Finance Fraternity will hold its last regular meeting of the fall semester on Friday at 7:00 p.m. in the Regency Room of the Royal Executive Inn, 2800 S. 72nd St.

very satisfied with the sanitary conditions of his operation.

He said the reason UNO is not inspected by the county is because the institution is state operated. Hunter did not express much enthusiasm about the possibility of a county inspection.

"It would just be another headache," he said. "Inspectors can be pretty unreasonable at times."

Hunter said, however, it would not be up to him if the county wanted to inspect his cafeteria. He said that decision would have to be made by his superiors, ultimately Dr. Ronald Beer, vice-chancellor for educational and student services.

Dierks said the County Health Department provides a training school for food handlers and requires that the workers in the county's eating establishments attend.

Future Training

Hunter admitted that his workers haven't participated in any training, but thinks it's a good idea and said he will probably contact Lincoln to arrange for such schooling in the future.

Dierks said his office will seek to inspect the UNO facilities sometime soon in the future. He said he didn't know if he would get any resistance from university officials, but said, "We can get in there if we push."

"The UNO facilities are in Omaha," he said, "so we feel we have an obligation to inspect there."

Firm Studies UNO Parking

The Leo A. Daly Company has been contracted to study UNO's parking situation.

According to Chancellor Ronald Roskens, an agreement with the firm was signed last week. The study's cost will be "no more than $10,000".

Roskens said an outside firm is being paid to do the job, because no one on the UNO campus has enough "expertise" to handle it. He said, "We need professional consultation on this matter."

The Daly firm will study technical matters, but will also survey faculty and student attitudes on parking. Roskens noted that the "whole matter of charging for parking" will be one of the issues looked into.

The Chancellor expects the results of the study to be released within four months.

Benefits Studied

There will be a special meeting of the faculty and staff today at 4:00 p.m. concerning the fringe benefit package and the new life insurance provisions. The meeting will be held in the University Theater of the Administration Building.

Dr. James Maynard of the University Systems Office will explain the new optional life insurance coverage which has been made available to University employees.

Dickinson Proposal Would Abolish Fee

Especially irritating to Dickinson was the recent student-sponsored appearance of Black Panther Bobby Seale at UNO. He said, "I am a proponent of free speech, but I don't think Bobby Seale, or anybody else for that matter, should be provided a podium from which to speak — especially when they advocate the overthrow of our government."

Dickinson feels, "We have to live by majority rule, and the majority of Nebraska's citizenry oppose this type of speaker." He continued, "Students can't tell us what type of university we should provide."

The senator is also upset by the student publications, partially sponsored by student fees. Speaking of UNL's Daily Nebraskan and UNO's Gateway, he charged, "Some of these ads and articles that are being printed are ridiculous."

He added, "I'm vitally interested in America and it's this type of thing that's causing our way of life to go down the drain."

Referring specifically to a Gateway story headlined "Roskens Attacks Gateway", Dickinson son termed it "obnoxious". He went on to label one of the paper's feature columns "a complete waste of space".

Dickinson sees "no danger" if the bill is passed in student publications being controlled by the university. But he would prefer to see them "learn about the free enterprise system".

Dickinson says activities that are justifiable will be supported by students of their own free will.

Bills similar to Senator Dickinson's have appeared before the Legislature many times in the past and all have been defeated. Will the drive to get rid of student fees be successful this time? Dickinson isn't sure, but says his proposal is gaining more support all the time.

Art Damage Feared

by Jim Beam

Peter Hill, chairman of the UNO Art Department, said he'd like to see more paintings displayed on campus. But he said he would be concerned about the "safety of the works and how to properly house any such collection."

Hill said he has been "pressed by the administration to get pictures around", but added, "I'm not a coordinator for hanging pictures."

And in defense of his students he emphasized, "We can't and shouldn't depend on students for paintings. I'm not going to rip off my students." He said that there are only about six to eight graduating art students each year, not all are painters.

Part of the question involving the safety of art work on campus revolves around about 20 valuable pieces of insured art work purchased some 16 years ago by the previous Art Department head. Presently they are hanging in administrative and deans' offices.

That leaves open the question of whether the paintings couldn't be better displayed for the whole University to see. Hill said he felt the ones in the deans' offices get quite a bit of exposure.

Concerning the possibilities of vandalism, Hill said at UNL some sculpture was wrecked in an open-air art show. At UNO a picture that had been hanging for some time in the library conference room was recently defaced when someone wrote obscenities on it in large letters with a ball point pen.

In the Fine Arts Center, one of two canvases Hill has indefinitely loaned to the University was damaged when some material was stacked against it. He said it was in immaculate condition before that. He also cautioned that any large problem with damage would make it very difficult in the future to get insurance.

The Student Center used to buy paintings from student art fairs, Hill said, and there are some displayed in the Student Center in various places and in some of the center's offices.

Most of the art on campus, he said, is from former students and some from instructors. Hill said he encourages some of the better students to leave some of their art work with the University, but noted that it's entirely up to them. He said it's nice to have graduates do this, especially if any of them should become prominent artists.

Hill said he's discouraging anyone from buying the large "bathroom tile mosaics" in the new cafeteria. In his opinion, for the money a person would be better off buying something of higher quality, which is more artistic. But it's not that they are poorly done, he said.

He said that anyone at the University who really wants some art for their office should come to a student art show. He added that any paintings that may be available for loan within the University would be in his office on a first come first serve basis.

Students Research Shoplifting

Consumer attitudes about shoplifting and its costs are being researched by UNO marketing students.

Shoppers at Southroads and Crossroads shopping centers are being surveyed regarding direct and indirect costs of shoplifting, and attitudes about penalties for shoplifting. From 800 to 1,000 persons are expected to participate in the survey.

Dr. Leonard Prestwich, professor of marketing and director of the UNO retail management program, developed the project to involve students in studying a problem with significant effects on retailing, and to add new information useful to retailers and others.

The students and Prestwich developed the 12-part questionnaire which was distributed at the Southroads and at the Crossroads.

Prestwich said preliminary survey data will be tabulated by the end of December. At this time data analysis will be started to determine differences in attitudes of survey respondents with respect to age, income and educational levels, and geographical locations of homes. Respondents are being asked to list the zip code of individual homes, but not names or addresses.

Last year, Prestwich prepared a major paper on "The Shoplifting Problem in Retailing." In this he pointed out that some approximations of the dollar loss resulting from shoplifting in the United States range from $2.14 million a day to $1.17 billion a year.

Prestwich believes many persons fail to appreciate the magnitude of shoplifting or how all are affected by it.

"Because of shoplifting and vandalism, Omaha shopping centers no longer have strollers available for customers' use," he points out. "Other methods taken to reduce shoplifting include less open display of merchandise, use of more expensive see-through shopping bags and limiting the number of items customers may take with them into dressing rooms."

"Some merchants have gone out of business because of inability to control shoplifting," Prestwich points out.

Few Girls Visit Games Room

The consensus of the people in the games room of the Student Center (in other words the males) is that they'd like to see more women taking an active part in the games there.

At the time the Gateway was in the area, only one girl was there. Her husband was in the Engineering College's table tennis tournament.

Girls don't game

She and her husband were formerly both students at Louisiana State University but transferred to UNO so he could attend graduate school here. She said, "There weren't many girls in the games area of the student center at LSU either." She added, "I'd like to come over here more often if I had the time and wasn't studying." She couldn't explain why more women weren't around.

One of the men working at the desk suggested maybe it was because of the "rough language." Another student at the desk responded with, "The girls leave school when they don't have classes the next day."

The sign for the table tennis tournament held the Tuesday before vacation welcomed all students, but no girls entered according to one student in charge of the tournament. His friend watching the tournament felt, "It's not just a men's sport; it's just that women don't come. I think if a few would play, we could get more back here." One of the guys nearby spoke up, "I did play a girl back here in table tennis once, and she was pretty good for a girl."

Rough on equipment

Mr. Robert Kriss is in charge of the games area, including the lunchroom and bowling section. He joked, "The kids are a little rough on the equipment, but I guess that's normal." He would appreciate it though if people were a little more concerned and didn't take food and drinks into the games area. Sitting on the pool tables is one of his pet peeves. Eighty dollars a table was spent last year to fix them up.

Right now there are five snooker and four rotation pool tables. Also there are three foosball and one air hockey games, two ping pong tables and four lanes of bowling. The cost for the use of these is two cents per minute for pool and one cent per minute for table tennis. Bowling is 35 cents a line.

Check cashing, a service provided between 8:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m., is a big thing, according to Kriss. He said he doesn't know where the students cashed them all before the service was initiated.

Bob Wolfe, director of the Student Center building services, said that when the present book store was finished, more room was made available in the games area.

Daily deposits made

Wolfe said that Kriss makes daily deposits of all income from the activities, excluding the food and cigarette machines, to a Student Center games account. He said this is a separate account, but is also part of a larger Student Center account.

He added that he wasn't exactly sure how the accounts were related or of the overall picture, but that the money is eventually reverted back to the building services.

He said that H & Z Vending has the contract for the building, and that Kriss takes the money out of their machines weekly and makes a notation of the receipts. From the foosball, air hockey and pinball machines UNO gets 61 per cent of the receipts to H & Z's 39 per cent. The satellite and juke box are split 50-50.

Wolfe said, "Our department is supposed to get monthly accounting reports, but we haven't been getting them because of accounting changes that are still being worked out since the OU-UNL merger."

From the computerized accounting sheets of the fiscal year '72-'73 starting July 1, Wolfe said, he did compile the total games area income at $25,466.20. The total games area expense came to $27,203.29.

New Senators Enjoy Midwest

by Dick Ulmer

The two student senators from the College of Public Affairs and Community Service (CPACS) don't view UNO as a "university of no opportunity". Both have traveled too far to harbor that misconception.

Drawn by Criminal Justice

Mike Betz, a transfer student from New Jersey, and Johnny Harrison, who recently finished serving time in the Marines, were drawn to UNO by what they term "one of the best criminal justice departments in the country". Since arriving here, both have become active in student government, and were voted onto the Senate during the October elections.

Harrison hasn't taken a firm stand on some of the issues facing the Senate because he likes to "study both sides before making a decision". He cited, as an example, the question of whether or not UNO should have a finals week. He said, "I'm undecided because a lot of students, including myself, haven't experienced both sides yet."

Disturbed by Athletics

There is at least one issue that Harrison doesn't need to study. He is "definitely disturbed" about the amount of support UNO athletics have received from the Omaha and University communities. A fullback on the Maverick football squad, Harrison noted that the athletic department is upgrading its programs and trying to get more community people involved, but attendance at events hasn't been very good. He said, "We had more people at our high school games back in Wildwood, Fla."

Harrison remembers other things about Wildwood, and is attempting to use some of the skills he learned there in his student government activities. Revealing that in his home town "everybody stops and talks", Harrison is "doing the same thing here". He would like to see UNO students "involved and unified".

Betz, like Harrison, is a criminal justice major. The junior is a transfer from a New Jersey community college. When asked why he made the move to Omaha, Betz first noted the reputation of UNO's criminal justice program, then added, "I wanted to see some part of the country on my own." He has found a "whole new style of life in Nebraska".

Found New Lifestyle

Betz, who likes the friendly atmosphere here", said that he was surprised to see strangers talk to one another "as if they had known each other for years".

Most of Betz's student government activity has been in the area of communication. He is a member of the Senate's Public Relations Committee which has been quite active recently. Two of their current projects are a Senate information table and a newsletter. Betz said that the purpose of the newsletter will be to "let students know what the Senate has done".

The information table "is a way for students to come to the Student Senate with a question". One of the few Senators who has taken time to man the table, Betz says it "has been very popular so far".

Student Response Invited

At the table, which is located on the second floor of the Student Center, students are asked to write down their questions. Senators then refer the inquiry to someone who should have its answer, or formulate a response themselves.

Betz sees the Student Senate as "a pretty well established organization" which "needs to get itself known".

Senate Rejects BLAC Request

The Student Senate has again rejected a proposal by the Black Liberators for Action on Campus (B.L.A.C.) asking for funds to hold a retreat.

The $350 request was a slightly altered version of a proposal made earlier this semester by the group. At that time, more than half of the senators voted for the expenditure, but it was not carried out because the Senate needs a two-thirds majority to spend any money.

This time the proposal didn't even make it to the floor, as the Senate's Budget Committee opposed it by a 4-0 margin. The Senate voted to accept the committee's report and chose not to suspend the rules to hear debate on the issue. The tally on whether or not to debate was 8-10.

Business Senator Mark Houston read a statement prepared by the Budget Committee explaining their opposition to the retreat.

Among the points raised by Houston were charges that B.L.A.C. is a "closed organization", that the idea lacked planning, and that Senate approval of the expenditure would "set a dangerous precedent".

Houston said other groups would then come to student government with similar proposals if the B.L.A.C. request was met.

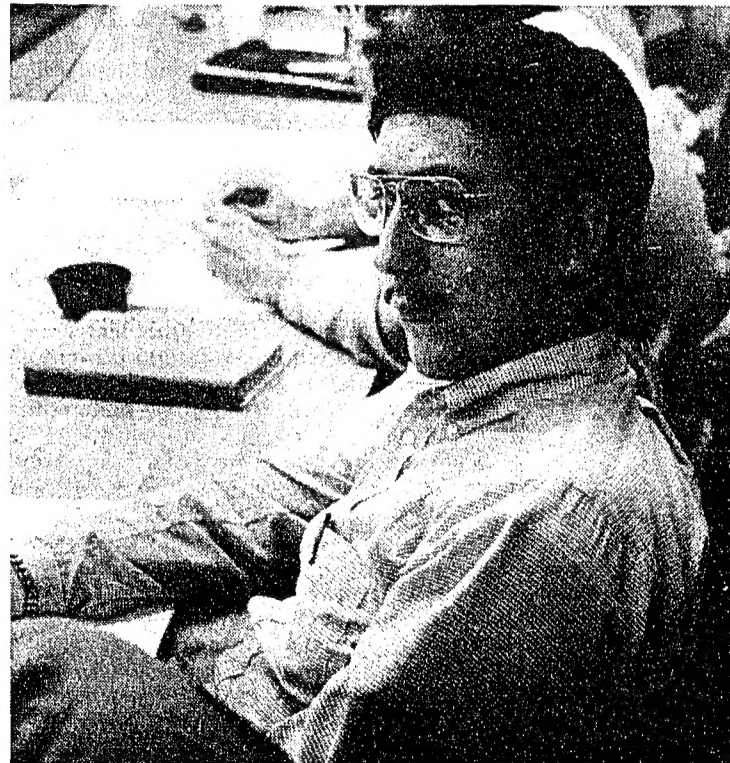

Further action on the question is expected at tomorrow evening's meeting. It begins at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom.

New Business Council Advises College

The UNO College of Business Administration now has a Business Advisory Council to help influence the college's program direction in the future.

Dr. William Muse, dean of the Business Administration College, said the council, made up of 16 Omaha business leaders, will perform "a vital function in influencing the direction of programs in the college".

He said the Council will advise UNO faculty regarding programs, and the faculty will report plans and results of activity to the Council.

North Central Eyed

UNO Athletic Director Clyde Biggers said on Friday that he and UNO Vice-chancellor for Educational and Student Affairs Ronald Beer recently attended a meeting in Minneapolis held by the members of the North Central Athletic Conference.

Biggers made it no secret that the UNO Athletic Department is actively looking into the possibility of joining the North Central Conference. He said of the meeting, "It was simply an exploratory meeting where both sides got together and talked about the possibility of future dealings."

He indicated that both he and

Dr. Beer were impressed with the North Central Conference as a quality conference. Since the meeting, Biggers has received a letter from the conference offices indicating pleasure with the presentation of UNO's athletic and academic programs, made by Biggers and Dr. Beer during their visit to Minneapolis.

Biggers said that if UNO applies for acceptance into the conference, it will take about a year to a year-and-a-half for the application to be processed. He indicated that UNO's decision to apply is still "a few months down the road."

Cagers Paste Morningside, Fall to South Dakota State

Maverick basketball for 1973-74 got off to a mixed start with a decisive win over Morningside last Friday and a close loss to South Dakota State on Saturday.

On Friday, the Maverick cagers out-offensed and out-defensed a Morningside squad that was without the services of its tall man, Dave Schlessler, 6-11.

The Mavericks got off to a slow start but eight minutes into the first half they gained the lead and maintained it for the remainder of the game. Morningside jumped into a quick 8-2 lead over the Mavericks, but a Dennis Fisher jumper from 20 feet out started the momentum that UNO would sustain from then on.

The UNO squad took the lead for good on a three-point play by John Funke, the Maverick's 6-6 center. At the ten minute mark, the UNO lead opened to 20-16 and at the end of the first half, the Mavericks were ahead by 14, 45-31.

First half statistics show Dennis Fisher to be the leading scorer for the Mavericks with ten points. He connected on five of seven attempted field goals. Robert Curry led the Chiefs in scoring at the half with a total of seven. UNO connected on 50 percent of its field goals and slightly less than that from the free throw line. Morningside had only scored on 39 per cent of their shots from the floor. They shot better than the Mavericks at the free throw line, however, making 63 per cent of their shots.

The second half of play was once again dominated by UNO. The Mavericks widened their lead to 21 points after eight minutes had elapsed. Funke scored on a reverse layup to make the score 59-38. The remainder of the game was taken up with UNO widening its lead. Morningside scored in spurts while UNO continued its assault on the boards.

The game ended with UNO up by 31 points, 89-58. Dennis Fisher of UNO was high scorer of the game with 18 points. Freeman Berry of Morningside was the only player to foul out.

The teams were close in the personal foul category. Morningside had 25 to UNO's 24. One of the keys to the final score was UNO's big edge in the rebound department. The Mavericks came up with 54 while the Chiefs could manage only 27.

After the game, UNO coach Bob Hanson indicated that he was pleased with his team's performance. He said, "We played good defense. All our players did well, especially the guys off the bench."

Coach Hanson was able to play 12 men during the game and all the UNO players scored in the game.

Attendance for the game was officially set at 1,252.

In their second game of a busy weekend, the Mavericks dropped a nip and tuck contest to a strong South Dakota State University team, 66-64, at Brookings, S.D. last Saturday.

It was the first game of the season for the Jackrabbits and they evened the Mavericks' record at 1-1.

The Jackrabbits jumped off to an 8-2 lead early in the first period and appeared on the way to an easy victory. The Mavericks, however, came back strong and tied the game 21-21 halfway through the first half. From then on the game changed hands numerous times. The Mavericks took the lead, 39-38, with 1:20 remaining in the first half and took a 41-40 lead to the dressing room at halftime.

The lead changed hands throughout the second half. The Mavericks managed to open up a 5-point lead, 51-46, with 16:00 minutes remaining in the game. This was the Mavericks' biggest margin of the second half but they couldn't maintain it.

The Jackrabbits tied the game, 60-60, with 3:13 remaining and pulled to a 64-60 margin with 1:47 left in the game. UNO tied it at 64-64 with 34 seconds remaining in the game. UNO's Randy Worth was charged with a foul in the scramble for a loose ball and Dale Nickelson, the SDSU high scorer, converted on both free throws to give the Jackrabbits the win.

Grapplers Open at Home

by Kevin Carolan

The Maverick wrestling team, coming off a 19-17 dual meet win over Northwest Missouri State University and a fifth place finish in the Air Force Invitational, makes its home debut tonight against Dana College, Nebraska-Wesleyan, and Huron College in a quadrangular meet in the UNO fieldhouse.

Huron Favored

Head coach Mike Palmisano indicated that Huron College would have to be considered the favorite in the triple dual competition based on its second place finish in the NAIA Championships last year. The Mavericks finished eighth at that time.

Dana College has six lettermen returning from last years squad led by 134-pounder Lee Kerndt. Also returning are Dave Jones, 118 lbs., Stan Johnson, 167 lbs., Don Newman, 190 lbs., and Bob Coffey, 150 lbs. Dana has a young team with only two seniors on the squad.

Not much is known of the Nebraska-Wesleyan squad. Last year they were defeated by the Mavericks 26-17, in the UNO fieldhouse.

Final Match

Huron College, a wrestling powerhouse the past two years, makes its first appearance at UNO. The Mavericks and Huron College will wrestle in the final match of the evening.

Davis New Track Captain

George Davis, UNO's senior quarter-miler, was elected captain of the 1974 track team.

Davis, a consistent runner throughout his career at UNO, anchored the mile relay team that won the NAIA Championship in 1972, tied the Great Plains Athletic Conference 440-yd. dash record in winning that event in 1973, and highlighted his career this past summer by being selected to participate in the World Student Games in Moscow.

Wrestlers Get First Win; Finish Fifth at Air Force

The UNO wrestling squad got the new season off to a good start by winning its first dual meet of the year and finishing a good fifth in the Air Force Invitational.

The Mavericks opened the 1973-1974 season last Wednesday with a close 19-17 win over a strong Northwest Missouri State University squad at Maryville, Mo.

A crowd of approximately 1,000 spectators watched the Mavericks take a 4-0 lead on the strength of sophomore Bob Stitt's 16-4 decision, and hold on in the heavyweight classes to edge the Bearcats by two points.

It was the twelfth meeting between the two schools and the win gave the Mavericks a 6-5-1 edge in the series.

Maverick wins

The Mavericks also got wins from 134-pounder Mike Block, 142-pounder Ken Boettcher, 167-pounder Craig Artist and 177-pounder Terry Zegers. Junior Dan Dyer came from behind with an escape in the closing seconds of his 158-lb. match to earn him a 5-5 tie with his opponent.

According to coach Mike Palmisano, "Dyer's tie was the turning point in the meet and set the momentum for our next two wins." Palmisano expressed some disappointment in freshman Larry Burkeholder who was beaten by a 7-4 score.

Stitt defeated Tom Danner but was unable to pin the Bearcat 118-pounder. Block took a 4-2 decision over Mark Kaufman and co-captain Boettcher defeated Bill Jarvis 8-2. Last year Boettcher and Jarvis wrestled to a 0-0 tie.

Dan Schroeder, the Maverick 150-pounder, got off to a slow start and was beaten by Kevin Brooks, 8-4. Artist, 167-lbs. beat Daryle Bunch 8-2. Junior Zegers steamrolled Rich Miller, 11-0, giving the Mavericks their second "superior decision" point of the evening. Freshman Dan Fuchs, wrestling well over his 177 lb. class, kept 190-pounder Jerry Middleton from pinning him and only allowed the Bearcats a 3-point score for the match. Dale Rubesh, apparently out of shape due to just coming off the football team, was pinned by Mike Papini in 5:28.

Palmisano was pleased with the win and stated, "we did what we had to do to win."

Air Force

Block finished second at 134 pounds to lead the Mavericks to a fifth place finish in the Air Force Invitational Wrestling Tournament Friday at the Academy.

UNO also achieved some personal victories in finishing ahead of their sister campus Nebraska-Lincoln which finished seventh. The Mavericks won two of three head to head clashes with the Lincoln campus.

Block, a transfer from McCook Junior College, lost to Ryan Gamble of Wyoming 3-1 in the 134-pound finals. Block was the only Maverick to make it to the finals.

He advanced to the finals with pins in both the quarterfinal and semifinal rounds. He had posted a 5-2 victory over Tom Hayes of South Dakota State.

Three other Mavericks placed in the tournament. Boettcher took third at 142 pounds while 118-pounder Stitt and 167-pounder Artist took fourth in their divisions.

Stitt was stuck with fourth without a consolation match because the other consolation contestant, Pat New, had defeated Stitt in the opening round 4-1.

Strong Points

Stitt said that New "stayed away from my strong points and hit my weak points." Stitt felt he could have beaten the lightweight from Minnesota and would have liked another shot at him.

After his loss in the first round Stitt won his remaining matches easily.

Team Captain Boettcher defeated Ratchford of the Air Force 5-1 for third. Earlier Boettcher had won over Joe Carr of Nebraska-Lincoln by default.

Carr was forced to default after injuring an ankle in his match with Boettcher.

Palmisano felt that Boettcher "wrestled stronger" as the meet progressed.

Artist finished fourth in the 167-pound division after being pinned by Lonnie Seuffer of Colorado State at 5:29. Artist had made it to the semifinals before receiving his first loss at the hands of Steve Cambell of the Air Force.

UNO wrestlers Schroder at 150 and Dyer at 158 made it into the semifinals before being beaten, but neither was able to advance in the consolation bracket.

Schroder Loss

Schroder lost to Marshall Oliver in one of the UNO-UNL confrontations. Oliver defeated Schroder 3-0, moving into consolation finals.

Larry Burkeholder, 126 pounds, defeated the Cornhuskers' Denny Zuk for the other Maverick win over UNL.

Teams Feel Gas Crisis

by Dave Smedley

With gas stations now closed on Sundays and the shortage of gas eminent, athletic teams at UNO may be in for difficult times.

When a UNO team plays away from Omaha, it usually takes to the road. Prior to the current energy crisis this was a relatively straight-forward affair. Now, certain obstacles have to be overcome that would have seemed preposterous a year or two ago.

If the basketball team, for instance, plays a game on Saturday night, it might not be able to return until Monday or it might have to come back that same night. Normally the team would have stayed until Sunday and returned then.

Last Friday, UNO's Business Manager Russ Baldwin indicated that the wrestling team ran into problems on its way to the Air Force Academy Invitational in Colorado. The Maverick grapplers had to take a bus instead of the University vehicles they had planned on. Baldwin, in referring to the change in plans said, "We hope the bus will help circumvent the problem."

The team was scheduled to return this past Sunday, the first Sunday of President Nixon's gas station close-down. Baldwin said that although there were reports that gas stations on Nebraska's Interstate system would remain open, the Air Force Academy informed UNO that stations in Colorado would be closed.

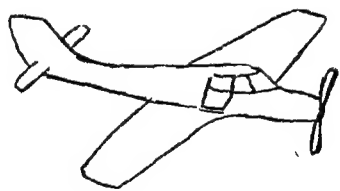

The wrestling team left early Friday morning and was scheduled to return on Saturday night instead of Sunday, as was originally planned.

Men's athletics at UNO doesn't corner the market on energy problems. According to Women's Athletic Director Connie Clausen, the women's basketball schedule may be disrupted if gas stations are forced to shut down on Sundays. She indicated that the women already have difficulty when it comes to scheduling matches with other schools because the UNO Fieldhouse is available to the women only when it is not in use by other people. She said that the only time the women have been able to slate matches at UNO is on Sundays.

If the gas station shut-down goes into effect, Clausen fears that teams like Kearney State and Wayne State, both out-state Nebraska teams, will be hard-pressed to drive to Omaha and return on one tank of gas.

Clausen said that provisions would even have to be made if the team goes down to Lincoln. She stated, "someone will have to make sure, if we use a school vehicle, that the gas tank is full before we leave. We can't get to Lincoln and back on a half tank of gas."

The ban on Sunday gas sales also interferes with administrative activities. Clausen said that a meeting originally scheduled for this coming Sunday here in Omaha would have to be re-scheduled on a week-day.

UNO Takes On Tough Pan Am Challenge

by Dave Coulton

Height won't be one of the Mavericks' worries when they challenge Pan American tomorrow night in Edinburg, Tex.

Like UNO, Pan American has a small team with an offense geared towards the fast break. Maverick Coach Bob Hanson said the Mavericks will try to check Pan American off the boards as a means of shutting off this possibility.

The two Broncos the Mavericks will have to keep off the boards are Carlos McCullough and Mike Hart.

McCullough was one of the top rebounders in the nation last year.

The Broncos will be using 6-2 Bruce King and Donny Cardenas and Jesus Guerra, both 5-10 guards, to run their fast break.

King, the leading Bronco scorer in the early season, averaged 23.5 points for Corpus Christi last year. King came to Pan America this year because Corpus Christi dropped all sports.

Bronco Coach Abe Lemons feels King is as good as any guard he's ever coached. Lemons formerly coached at Oklahoma City University and several of his teams there went to NCAA and NIT tournaments.

King, a good sharpshooter, posted his 24 point average last year by shooting 52 percent from the field.

Hanson said it would take a good team effort by the Mavericks to beat Pan American. Hanson was dissatisfied with the Mavericks individual play against South Dakota State.

He said, "We had four men standing around while one man went one on one. We have to work more as a team." Hanson felt the Mavericks had played poorly and made too many mental errors. He was confident that the Mavericks won't make the same mistakes Thursday.

Hanson plans to start Tim Linder, Dennis Fisher, Calvin Forrest, John Funke and Larry Seger. Forrest, last year's leading scorer, has only totaled eight points in two games for the Mavericks.

Hanson feels Forrest will get back on the scoring track for the Mavericks. Hanson said Forrest was an unselfish player and pointed out that he had nine rebounds in the opening game.

Correction

A typographical error in last Friday's Gateway intramural page made a statement incorrectly read that entries for the semester break intramural basketball tournament are not being accepted by Intramural Director Bert Kurth.

The statement should have read that entries are now being accepted by Kurth for the tournament which will be held Jan. 9-12.
